

Wakatipu Heritage Trust Trustees

David Clarke – Trustee

Director of the Lakes District Museum since 1989, David is involved in preserving all aspects of the district's history. He has a degree in history and has been involved in built heritage protection for over 20 years.

David served as a district councillor for two terms and has sat as a planning commissioner for 10 years. He is also involved in numerous community groups.

David Mayhew

David has recently returned to Queenstown after a legal career spanning Dunedin, Auckland and London. In addition to studying law at Otago University, he obtained a degree in history.

David spent his first summer holiday in Queenstown in 1962 and then regularly as a teenager and student. His interest in heritage matters was sparked in particular by his father's book, Tuapeka, the Land and its People, one of the Otago Centennial Historical Publications.

Two of David's Great, Great, Grandfathers worked the goldfields at Gabriel's Gully in 1861, according to records held by the Early Settlers Museum.

Gillian Macleod

Gillian has lived in the area for the past 35 years and have been involved in some restoration projects such as the Bathhouse Restaurant (formerly her office) on the Lake Wakatipu foreshore and the One Mile Powerhouse.

She is an architect, urban designer and former councillor of the QLDC and feels her combination of experience may be useful to the trust.

Craig Ferguson – Ex officio Council Representative

From kindergartens to the elderly at Abbeyfield and everything in between. That has been Ferg's 30 odd years in the Queenstown Lakes District.

Ferg is a people person and admires the diverse make up of our communities. As a former NZ Colt and Junior All Black sport and rec is his strongest suit but this community has taught him so much more.

Most of his Council time is spent out in the community assisting residents and community groups where he can while not shying away from the calls that must be made around the Council table.

"We live in one of the most special regions of the world and we have to work hard to keep it that way. We are in it together."

Marion Borrell

Marion (M.A. Hons, M.Lit.) is the president of the Queenstown and District Historical Society, and editor of the Queenstown Courier magazine for members.

She is also the programme co-ordinator for the Wakatipu U3A. In 1972 she wrote Old Buildings of the Lakes District.

In 1978 she moved here, where her ancestors came during the goldrush, and for many years she taught English at Wakatipu High School.
